CHAIR'S WELCOME

The Midwest Power Systems Conference (MIPSYCON), formerly the Minnesota Power Systems Conference, is the premier annual technical conference serving utility professionals, engineers, consultants, and vendors across the Upper Midwest. Historically hosted by the University of Minnesota, the conference has transitioned to a new independent model beginning in 2026.

Following the University's decision in May 2025 to discontinue administration of this conference, industry leaders formed an independent, volunteer-led organization to ensure the continuation of this critical event.

Today, MIPSYCON operates as a 501(c)(6) nonprofit organization, with a 100% volunteer Board of Directors drawn from utilities, manufacturers, consultants, and industry stakeholders. Your support is critical to long-term viability of the conference as we continue to provide affordable educational credits to attendees.

To ensure professional execution and long-term sustainability, Bismarck State College (BSC) has been selected as the conference administrator, providing operational support, logistics, continuing education accreditation, and financial management.

The Board of Directors and the planning committee look forward to building off what the conference has been and what we will build it to be with Bismarck State College.
