The Pre-Radiologic Technology program at BSC provides the first two years of core classes toward a baccalaureate degree. Radiographers are medical personnel who perform diagnostic-imaging examinations, position patients accurately, and ensure production of quality diagnostic images. They work closely with radiologists and may specialize in radiation therapy or technique, such as computer tomography (CT) or magnetic resonance imaging (MRI). BSC students should apply to the transfer school as soon as possible and plan their curriculum according to that school's requirements.

Students first complete academic requirements of the chosen college, and then complete the clinical program at a school of radiologic technology. The certification process ends by passing the Radiologic Radiographers Registry Examination.

PREPARATION AND REQUIREMENTS
High school students are advised to take as much math and science as possible. BSC strongly advises that students study the catalogs of the college/university and/or professional school to which they want to transfer and modify their BSC course selections, if needed, in conjunction with their academic adviser. Community service is recommended.
