Explore beliefs, cultures and the ideas that shape society

With a two-year Associate in Arts in Religion from Bismarck State College, you'll study religion through an interdisciplinary approach rooted in the humanities while developing skills in critical thinking, analytical writing, public speaking and cross-cultural communication.

You'll complete the first two years of coursework toward a bachelor's degree in religious studies while building a strong foundation in general education and social sciences. Coursework includes world religions, philosophy, ethics, the Old and New Testament, and religion in America.

PREPARING FOR SUCCESS IN YOUR DEGREE

If you're pursuing a religion major, you should have an interest in history and the study of ideas across cultures and time periods. Strong communication skills are important and a background in the social sciences can be helpful.

An advanced degree will provide the strongest career opportunities in this field.
